

Online Training Regarding Teaching Adults with Learning Disabilities

The following websites offer free online training regarding teaching adults who have learning disabilities:

- Central/Southeast ABLE Resource Center at <http://www.able-ohiou.org/> now offers a 2-part learning disabilities training online. From their homepage, click on "Learning Disabilities," then choose from one of the following links:
 - Link to LD 101 - LD:Overview of Learning Difficulties and Disabilities for ABLE Administrators
 - Link to LD 201 - LD Overview of Learning Difficulties and Disabilities for Support Staff and Instructors
- Florida TechNet has an online version of the Bridges to Practice training, a nationwide training initially funded in part by the National Institute for Literacy to help adult education and literacy programs provide more effective services for their adult students with learning disabilities. There are two online workshops:
 - Year 1 web-based training is available at <http://www.floridatechnet.org/in-service/bridges/>
 - Year 2 web-based training, the follow-up to Year 1, is available at <http://www.floridatechnet.org/in-service/bridges/second/>

For more information or assistance, contact Patti White, AALRC Disabilities Project Manager, at 800.569.3539 or prwhite@madisoncounty.net.